

BUSY DAY FOR JUDGE O'BRIEN

ATTORNEY COOKE BECOMES FACETIOUS AND IS GIVEN REBUKE.

The Coslett divorce case did not drag yesterday; it galloped along. On the day before it was a case of guns in court, that his honor had to sit on. Yesterday, he had to sit on one of the lawyers and jump on the defendant, after the latter had threatened to alter the map of his wife's attorney.

Judge O'Brien has had four days of the trial, and as the majority of the witnesses are women, who have excellent memories, the hearing has been tedious. It is quite evident that Mrs. Coslett does not care for Mr. Coslett, and that Mr. Coslett does not care for Mrs. Coslett. But Mr. Coslett owns some valuable property, and Mrs. Coslett, before she casts him off forever, would like to have a slice of the estate.

In the morning his honor was reading a newspaper, and Attorney Cooke for the man, objected to his honor's literary pursuits, and suggested to the judge that he pay a little more attention to the testimony.

"What's that," demanded Judge O'Brien, all attention.

Mr. Cooke repeated the offense and the deputy sheriffs got their hand-cuffs ready.

"Another observation like that," remarked Judge O'Brien, "and I will commit you for contempt."

Needless to say there were no more observations like that, but in the afternoon, when the defendant was on the stand in his own defense, there occurred a passage at arms between him and his cross-examiner. The lawyer for the wife wanted to go into the domestic relations of himself and wife, and he got not only inquisitive but personal and offensive.

"Your ——— cur!" cried Coslett, springing from the witness chair; "I'll break your head."

The bailiff caught him and Judge O'Brien sentenced him to twenty-four hours in jail after the hearing is over. He was good for the rest of the day.

THE SITUATION AT GOLDFIELD

SECRETARY ERB SAYS THERE IS NO TROUBLE IN GETTING ALL MEN NEEDED.

William Erb, secretary of the Goldfield Miners' Association, was in this city yesterday morning on his way to Rawhide. Mr. Erb said that the situation in Goldfield was righting itself, and that the mines would soon be running in full blast.

"There will be no trouble in getting all the men we may need," said he, "and this has been demonstrated by the fact that there are 125 coming in tonight from Salt Lake. The mines are going to be operated, there is nothing to that. We have waited long enough for the miners to come in and sign for work, and while some of them have come, we cannot wait for all of them any longer."

"Regarding the movement of Thos. O'Brien in organizing the Nevada Miners' Union, I know nothing further than what I have heard and what he has told me. He says that they are being organized independently of the Western Federation of Miners, and anybody can work for us who does not belong to that organization, and will sign the agreement to that effect. I do not know who is behind Mr. O'Brien; the association certainly is not, and I do not know what Mr. O'Brien hopes to accomplish by his work, further than I understand that he is going to make a State organization of the union. That I think, would be a good thing."

"I don't know what Mahoney is doing, or what he can hope to do. I don't believe that he is very popular with the agitators, and that is a good thing in his favor. We have not had any conference with him regarding the trouble, and we cannot hope to do anything through him, for the reason that whatever he might suggest would have the Western Federation behind it."

Henry Weber, one of the mine owners of Goldfield, was another who was here yesterday, and he also takes a favorable view of the situation.

"We will have 125 miners in tonight from Salt Lake, and we will have more in in a very short time. Things must be in desperate straits with some of the old miners, but they have the remedy open to them. Some of them, in fact, are breaking away, and going to work. Four of my old men came to me a few days since, and I know that there have been similar experiences with other operators. I will resume work on six leases on the Atlanta tomorrow morning."

SCOTT HICKEY ON THE MEND

Deputy Sheriff Scott Hickey, who came here from Manhattan a few days ago to finish doctoring himself for a broken rib, was about town yesterday, much improved in health, and as full of the glories of Manhattan as ever.

"The Manhattan Consolidated mine is shipping to the Wolf mill right along," said he, "and the Lemon mill is taking the ore of Union No. 4. The Rose-Nash lease is going to begin to ship pretty soon to the Lemon mill. With these two mills going all the time, and the Moore and Chapman nearing completion, there is the best kind of a showing and feeling in Manhattan. There is no doubt in my mind, that it is one of the biggest camps in the State."

"CAMILLE" DRAWS A LARGE CROWD

THE GEORGIA HARPER STOCK COMPANY MEETS WITH APPROVAL.

The Eagles Pavilion was crowded again last night, the attraction being "Camille." Tonopah has demonstrated its fondness for anything that is above the average in the theatrical line, and the last three nights has shown that the higher the class of attraction the more appreciative are the people.

The performance all through was one of the best to which this metropolis of the desert has even been treated. The piece was well cast, and was well played. Miss Harper demonstrated her versatility and left no doubt as to her ability to sway her audience. She had them with her all the time, and never for a moment did she permit their interest to abate. The play offers the actress a great opportunity and Miss Harper made the best of it. Whether as the gay butterfly of the demi-monde, surrounded by her lovers plenty, or as the wife, loyal and devoted in her happy country home, she was equally attractive, and held the audience in her spell. Especially fine was she in the scene of renunciation of her love, while her heart was breaking, and again in the scene of the quarrel between her lover and her beloved.

There was plenty of shading to her Camille, a strong, well defined woman of the world made good by the chastening touch of a true love. Her struggle with herself during the interview with the father of Armand was a strong piece of work, and her farewell to Armand was a succession of emotions, of delicate caresses and gentle touches, the lingering lights of a shattered love.

The fourth act, the strongest in the play, is all Armand's for action, but there is plenty of work there for Camille. Her struggle to keep the honor of her beloved's family, and the temptation to yield to Armand's entreaties to return to him, was most touching, and the pain that racked her heart was shown in every expression. When at last he spurned her and threw the money at her in contempt, she carried herself until she could no longer bear the burden, and her collapse was a ne bit of realism.

Mr. Detrick had his chance here, and he fulfilled the promise his past performances had given. He made a delightful lover in the early scenes, and was at his best when the man in him was roused by the spirit of revenge. In the scene where he spurns the supposed unfaithful woman, he had the audience and there was not a sound heard in the house as he rushed through his denunciation of Camille. His speech was, perhaps, too rapid, but his delivery was splendid and forceful, his enunciation clear and distinct, his bearing manly, his whole frame quivering with the vengeance that he deemed was his. He made a fine figure, and his response to the insult of the count was perfect. The curtain descended upon a faultless climax.

The death scene was fittingly depicted by the broken hearted Camille, and it was in the little touches here that Miss Harper shone again. Taken all in all, the production was one of which the company might well be proud. The company was evenly cast, and there was much attention paid to the little details which go to make perfection. The rendition of "Camille" gives much promise for "Sappho," which is the attraction for tonight. Miss Harper should do well in this, very well. And it might not be amiss in passing to admonish those who are going tonight to be there early, for there is one of the most delightful bits of comedy in the first act that one does not want to miss, or destroy the effect of it by coming in late. The curtain goes up on time in the Pavilion.

LARGE ATTENDANCE IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

Miss Helene Shavin has been appointed a teacher in the Tonopah schools. This makes nine teachers now in the department, and there is need for all of them, and possibly more. The term in the summer opened with the largest attendance that the schools have ever known and has been increasing right along since. In some of the classes there are as many as sixty pupils.

MONA BELL'S SLAYER IN JAIL

OFFICERS ARRIVE WITH FRED DAVIS, WHO KILLED HIS CONSORT.

Fred Davis, or Fred Skinner, the alleged murderer of pretty but frail Mona Bell, alias Isabel Heskett, was brought here yesterday from Rhyolite in custody of Deputy Sheriffs John Casey and Thomas D. Devine. Davis was held to answer before the Grand Jury without bail. He had no defense to offer at his preliminary hearing, but his defense will be undoubtedly self defense. He has two wounds to show where he claimed that the murdered woman shot him.

Deputy Sheriff Casey said yesterday that Davis was anxious to get out of Rhyolite, for there was a very hostile feeling against him, and that at one time it was feared that the people were going to make a break for the jail and take the law into their own hands. The officer says that all the actions of Davis after the shooting were of the most cold-blooded character, showing that he was already at work building up a defense.

"The wounds on Davis are only superficial," said Deputy Casey, "and the doctor says that they could hardly have been made by anybody but himself. No chances were taken either in the way of killing. The wound in his breast is a scratch, and would have to be made, if not by himself, by someone standing behind him, and high above him. The doctor could not conceive where the woman could have been standing to have inflicted the second wound which is lower in the body."

The case of the murder will probably be the first to occupy the attention of the Grand Jury which is to come into life within the next few days, and the alleged murderer will have no cause to complain of the delay in the proceedings.

The body of the slain girl is now on the way to Washington, to the home of her mother, where it will be buried. It is accompanied by C. C. Heskett, the husband of Mona Bell. The mother lives at Ballard, Washington, and her name is Mrs. C. E. Peterman. She is a half sister of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, the head of the Christian Science church.

Isabel Peterman was married to Heskett at Shadron, Neb., about two years ago, when she was but eighteen years of age. Heskett was a gambler and the marriage was arranged on the sly. The pretty girl entered into a life, with her marriage, the existence of which she knew not, but to the credit of Heskett, it is said he tried to shield her from the harm of it. They moved from Nebraska to Arrowhead, Colo., and while there the scoundrel Skinner came into her life. Skinner was a married man, but he evidently overcame the scruples of the young wife, and one night when Heskett was absent from home, they eloped and came to Nevada.

The remainder of the story the public is familiar with. Davis put the girl into the dance hall here, and she provided food and raiment for him that he might live the life of ease and comfort. His passion for her was intense, it is said, and he was always afraid that he would lose her. Well, he has lost her, and his life will probably pay the forfeit for the loss.

Heskett has spent $1500 in the search for the couple, and has all the time kept in correspondence with his wife's mother. He knew that she was with Skinner, but the latter had taken the name of Davis, and the wife the name of Mona Bell, to throw the husband off the scent. A friend who discovered the secret of the pair at Rhyolite wired the news of the murder to Heskett at Fallon, and he immediately went to Rhyolite to do the man's duty, showing that he was "square" with the girl who had deserted him for the life into which she fell, and which led her to an awful death.

RUSH IS ON TO CAMP OF RAWHIDE

PEOPLE ARE FLOCKING TO NEW AND BOOMING DISTRICT.

Rawhide in Tonopah, Rawhide in Goldfield, Rawhide in Reno; it is the cry everywhere. The name and fame of the camp is spreading and it is getting better in reports and sound all the time. Everybody seems to be getting the fever, for everybody who can get away is going there. Some are going to look at the camp, some to secure properties or leases; some to invest in business.

There was a party of four from Goldfield which passed through here yesterday on the way to the camp of promise. In the party were Wm. Erb, A. D. Nash, Walter Whittemore and Harold Baxter, engineer for Loftus and Davis. Nash knows the road and the country; the others are going to see what is to be seen. They are getting ready here to go out in teams, going out to stay, and then again there are others going out just for a visit.

This morning, Key Pittman, F. A. Stevens and J. S. Daveler, manager of the Bonanza, are going to leave for the boom camp. Mr. Pittman has been impressed by the reports which have reached here; he is going to establish a branch law office with Mr. Stevens in charge.

Chauncey Booth is another who has yielded to the lure of gold, and he, too, will leave this morning for the camp of destiny.
